Colonial Secretary. 256 pp., and Index. Wyman & Sons, Ltd., London, 1909. Grenada, in the Lesser Antilles, has an area of only about 120 square miles, but its population in 1901, was 63,438 and is increasing, chiefly through the excess of births over deaths, at the rate of about 1,000 a year. The book contains a descriptive and historical sketch of the island and many details as to its flora, fauna, climate, products and industries, with special attention to the chief towns, roads and commerce. Attention is called to its scenic beauty and salubrity and the attractions it offers to tourists.

Norwegian Self-Taught. By C. M. Thimm. Fourth Edition, revised and enlarged by P. Th. Hanssen. 128 pp. E. Marlborough & Co., London, 1909. 2s. 6d. Intended chiefly for those who need to use the spoken tongue but do not wish to give much time to the grammar.
